Lake Machine Shop

By wearing hip boots it is still possible to turn out necessary jobs in the Crown Willamette mill machine shop, using boats to transport heavy materials. A bewildered carp was scooped up here in a bucket a day or so after the water came in.—Photo by C. E. Malcolm, CWP Co.

CWP Co. Mill Yard

Looking west, with the corner of No. 15 Machine room showing at left. Difficulties of handling material and shipping products of the mill may be imagined by noting this view of what is ordinarily a busy point in the mill transportation system.—Photo by
